Collaborating with producer J. Walker (Machine Translations), Heligoland have come into their own with this, their second album. "A Street Between Us" sees Heligoland continue their path of lush textures and soaring gentleness, but now, there is a more succinct attitude at work; an assured brevity. Karen Vogt's vocals sparkle and ache with an empowering beauty over a subtle rhythm section and delicate, perfectly placed guitar lines.

‘A Street Between Us’ also has a European release through French label ‘Ocean Music’.

QUOTES & REVIEWS:

“A Street Between Us is undoubtedly a beautiful record.” – Drum Media

“A Street Between Us has a fragile beauty...” – Forte Magazine

“Melbourne's Heligoland combine the emotive ethereality of The Cocteau Twins with the stark balladry of Low.” – The Wire (UK)

“Enter here an awe-inspiring, sonic escapade that may take your breath away and assure you that you don't walk alone.” - The Big Takeover (USA)

“If David Lynch was there I can honestly say he would have bought them on the spot.”
